

WHITE OAK
(Quercus alba)

White Oaks are suitable for larger areas. Their leaves are dark green in summer and turn red in the fall. The White Oak exhibits a slow to moderate growth rate, and prefers acidic, moist, well-drained soil, as well as full sun. The tree grows to a height of 50'-100' on average, with a canopy width of usually no more than 80'.